

J'Diema Vather Cienne

The first observation of the Dyar assassin was noted approximately one-thousand years into the Third Era of Ire, notably with the murder of Cerehlon Vyashen, daughter of Kela & Mulair Vyashen, her father of whom was an Assembly member of Aamar-Tol's elected government.

J'Diema has been hired by enemies of elves across Emer ever since. During Aldaron's rise he was not considered a prime threat, yet his assassinations continued, for the most part against minor members of the Aldaron's growing Empire. It took five hundred years and Aldaron's resignation from the Empire before J'Diema would become the threat he is to stability.

It is well known his actions during Vania's, Aldaron's Daughter and the Empress, rule helped in bringing about the collapse of human civilization into the dark age. In 1608 he slew the Prince of Coronan, allowing Driselle to seize power and begin the reaction against the rule of the Emperor. This very action served to bring about the Inquisitions leading to the collapse of the Empire some fifty years later.

J'Diema is a known Sorcerer with great combatant skill who has the ability to travel the Chaos lands, call forth demons of the pales and void. Trained in poisons and all manner of subterfuge his murders are tailored for each situation and he has never been caught.

From here on lists some 3000 important individuals in positions of power in stable civilizations that J'Diema has slain.
