Servant to Mynistra, Protector of Mir, champion of those less able, Son of the Nemeck line, Inheritor of Emperor Aldaron's most hallowed duty, we call to you now in this hour of great need. As her lady's most gracious envoy, I Anteu, High Archbishop of Mynistra extend my strength and support to you, your lands, and your people.

Times of politics have passed and now the faith is challenged and unlike with politics we can act. Sarnak destroyed the chief Temple to Mynistra at Bentara and slew its Bishop and all congregation on the eve of the new year in the town square.

Archbishop Caran has come forward with the details of the dreadful plots building and I have every faith in his judgement. While from afar you may have felt Mynistra not as protective of you as you would have expected. In times where diplomacy is the common battle for land, our faith is bound in good stead to the people of all lands first and foremost. Caran's information is something that cannot be ignored. As of this moment, we of Mynistra show you our protectiveness to those in her land, foremost the grand captainship over all forces of Mynistra. All priests and their servants will aid you in battle as army for what you see fit to cleanse Mir and restore order from the fractitious divisions since the fall of the King.

Mynistra herself personally grants this title of grand captain against those that would take choice of faith away and pervert the quality of life of all life. Archbishop Caran will henceforth remain at your side vigilant and as your direct communication with us until such a time as we meet, something I hope to do soon, Stjepan.

May love grace you and your wisdom be free from burden

Anteu
